LETTS ATTACKING

Teuton Forces At Riga Are Gradually Being Enveloped

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Omsk, Nov. 12.—The Government removed to Irkutsk on November 10. The Supreme Ruler is directing military operations.

The Cossacks at a meeting yesterday decided on no account to surrender the Cossack capital of Omsk to the enemy.

General headquarters reports: In the direction of Ishim the enemy has been checked. In the direction of Petropavlovsk our troops occupy the station of Moskalenki (89 miles from Omsk).

The offensive against Omsk is being chiefly carried out by Communist troops. All the officers at Omsk have been drafted into the line regiments.

Letts Are Enveloping Teuton Forces At Riga
(Reuter's Service)

Copenhagen, November 8.—The Lettish Press Bureau states:

The Letts on the fourth day of the new offensive are gradually enveloping Bermondt, bombarding his lines of retreat with the assistance of the Allies. The German counter-attacks were beaten off. Fighting continues to be most obstinate. Russian detachments with their officers are deserting to the Letts from Bermondt. The Letts are at the same time successfully operating against the Bolsheviks, to help General Judenitch.

Many Prisoners Taken, General Denikin Reports
(French Wireless Service)

Paris, November 13. (Via Lyons and Koukaza).—A communique gives the following details of the situation on General Denikin's front:

At the beginning of November in the vast region on the Eastern bank of the Volga, the enemy was defeated on the right bank sustaining heavy losses. On the front of the Don estuary many prisoners were taken. In particular a successful attack carried out North of Yeisk has been followed up.

General Chkuro is checking the advance of the Bolshevik cavalry West of the Don.

Treaty Reservations Submitted To Powers By American Senate

Proposal To Strike Out Labor Provisions Of Peace Pact Is Voted Down

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, November 7.—The Senate by 48 votes to 40 today adopted the first clause of the Peace Treaty Reservations drawn up by the Foreign Relations Committee, namely the Preamble requiring three Great Powers to accept the reservations.

(American Press Wireless)

Washington (undated).—The Senate voted down the proposal to strike the Labor provisions out of the Peace Treaty.

TEXT OF RESOLUTION

The resolution presented in the Senate follows:

"Resolved (two-thirds of the senators concurring therein). That the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of the treaty of peace with Germany, signed by the plenipotentiaries of the United States and Germany and by the representatives and plenipotentiaries of the 27 allied and associated powers at Versailles on June 28, 1919, with the following reservations and understandings to be made a part and a condition of such ratification, which ratification is not to take effect or bind the United States until the said following reservations and understandings have been accepted as part of and a condition of said instrument of ratification by at least three of the four principal allied and associated powers, to wit: Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan:"

The exact text of the four reservations reads:

"1.—The United States reserves to itself the unconditional right to withdraw from the league of nations upon the notice as provided in Article I. of said treaty of peace with Germany.

"2.—That the United States declines to assume, under the provisions of Article X or any other article, any obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country or to interfere in controversies between other nations, whether members of the league or not, or to employ the military and naval forces of the United States in such controversies or to adopt economic measures for the protection of any other country, whether a member of the league or not, against external aggression or for the purpose of coercing any other country or for the purpose of intervention in the internal conflicts or other controversies which may arise in any other country, and no mandate shall be accepted by the United States under Article XXII, part 1, of the treaty of peace with Germany except by the action or joint resolution of the Congress of the United States.

"3.—The United States reserves to itself exclusively the right to decide what questions are within its domestic jurisdiction, and declares that all domestic and political questions relating to its affairs, including immigration, coastwise traffic, the tariff, commerce and all other domestic questions, are solely within the jurisdiction of the United States and are not under this treaty submitted in any way either to arbitration or to the consideration of the council or of the assembly of the league of nations or to the decision or recommendation of any other power.

"4.—The United States declines to submit for arbitration or inquiry by the assembly or the council of the league of nations, provided for in the said treaty of peace, any questions which in the judgment of the United States depend upon or relate to its long established policy known as the Monroe doctrine; said doctrine is to be interpreted by the United States alone, and is hereby declared to be wholly outside the jurisdiction of said league of nations, and entirely unaffected by any provision contained in the said treaty of peace with Germany."

INDIAN OFFICIAL KILLED

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 10.—According to a Teheran telegram to the Times, an Indian political officer, Mr. Scott, was killed by Kurds in the Zab valley on November 3, as he was returning from an inspection of gendarmerie posts on the armistice frontier line. The assailants drove off the gendarmes.

LOCAL SOCIETIES THROW DISLOYALTY CHARGES AT ANFUS

Telegraphed Resolutions Ask President To Disband Club

TREASON IS SEEN

Members Sought Control Of Ministry To Obtain Party Subsidies

CORRUPTION HINT

Submission Of Shantung Case To League Of Nations Asked

Charging the Anfu Club with corruption and treason, eight local organisations yesterday addressed a telegram to President Hsu Shih-chang and the Peking Cabinet, demanding the dissolution of the club.

The same organisations addressed another telegrahic message to the President and the Cabinet and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, asking the Central Administration to ingore Japan's attempt to negotiate with Peking directly over the Shantung question and to leave the matter to the League of Nations for adjustment.

ANFU 'INTRIGUES'

The message assailing the Anfuites reads:

"With the assistance of the new Parliament, the Anfu Club has been intriguing for selfish ends, infringing upon the liberty of the people and impairing the sovereignty of the nation. It has long been the public enemy of the people.

OUT FOR SUBSIDY

"Today, it further actively campaigned to place its own men in the Ministries of the Interior and Finance, so that it might retain the sum of $140,000 of government subsidy for its party expenses and so as to enable them to repeat their corruptive practice during the coming election.

"The people of the whole nation are indignant and requests you to dissolve it by a Presidental Mandate in order to appease the minds of the citizens."

THE SHANTUNG CASE

The telegram asking for the submission of the Shantung case to the League of Nations was as follows:

"It has been reported in the press that the Shantung case is being brought up for direct negotiations between China and Japan. The hearts of the people are throbbing with anxiety and insist that this case be submitted to the League of Nations for settlement.

BEWARE OF STATESMEN!'

"This is a move to elevate the national status of this country as we are assured that we could secure justice from this international body. Please do not fall into the trap set by the crafty statesmen."

The messages were despatched by the Kiangsu Educational Association, the Shanghai City Educational Association, the Nantao Chamber of Commerce, the Western Returned Students' Union, the World's Chinese Students' Federation, the Chinese Vocational Educational Association, the Overseas Chinese Union and the Shanghai Fire Brigade's Union.

Premier's Action Serious Blow At Anfu Prestige

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 12.—Premier Chin Yun-peng has begun to swing the "big stick" and the first object that he has aimed it has been the subsidy given by the Government to the Anfu club from the Salt Surplus and the Railway Revenues. This action by the Premier, which is destined to be far-reaching and a serious blow to the prestige and power of the Anfu Party, is due to the opposition raised by the Anfu majority in Parliament to the nominations for Chin's Cabinet, and more particularly to Chou Tze-chi as Minister of Finance.

JAPANESE INTERCEPT KOREA ROYAL PRINCE ON HIS WAY TO CHINA

Second Son Of Late Emperor Is Turned Back When He Tries To Come Here

IS OFFERED PORTFOLIO

Member Of Royal Family Said To Have Sought To Show Unrest Of Nation

Prince Yi Kang, second son of the late Emperor Yi of Korea, was intercepted by the Japanese recently on his way to Shanghai, according to telegraphic advices received by Mr. Li Dong-whi, premier of the Korean Provisional Government with offices here. The message came yesterday. Prince Yi, who is supposed to live sumptuously and contentedly as a pensioner of the Japanese Government in Seoul, eluded his guards and got as far as Antung on the Manchurian border where he was seized and forced to return.

The message states that he was on his way here to join the Provisional Government cabinet, which until recently had its headquarters at 321 Avenue Joffre. He sought to demonstrate that all classes in Korea are a unit in their demand for national independence.

AGAINST THE JAPANESE

The late emperor, whose abdication was forced, left three sons. The eldest was made emperor and he still lives in Seoul in magnificent quarters, closely guarded. With him has been Prince Yi Kang, the second son. The third son and heir apparent was taken to Japan years ago and is kept carefully removed from all political matters. It was his approaching marriage to a Japanese princess coupled with the death of the old emperor last spring that led to the report that the emperor had taken his own life in order to interrupt the wedding.

Anti-Japanese demonstrations throughout Korea again occurred recently on occasion of the birthday of the Emperor of Japan. Word to this effect came in the foregoing message as well as from other sources.

Wholesale arrests were made by the Japanese authorities, even before the thirty-first of October, they having scented trouble. The affair in Seoul was led by the students of the Higher Common School, who struck en masse and started a demonstration which was soon joined by hundreds of other Koreans. The authorities, hearing that demonstrations were to be conducted in automobiles, commandeered all the machines.

St. John's Will Celebrate Fortieth Birthday Today

Eight Honorary Degrees And 53 Others Will Be Conferred When Cooper Gymnasium Is Dedicated

St. John's University celebrates the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the institution today, the third and big day of the observance. The important features of the program are the conferring of nine honorary and fifty-three other degrees and the dedication of the Cooper Memorial Gymnasium in the afternoon.

The recipients of the honorary degrees are Rev. Sing Tsae-seng, Assistant Bishop of Chekiang, Doctor of Divinity; Dr. T. H. Lee, president of Futan College, Mr. Huang Yen-yei, vice-president of the Kiangsu Educational Association and Mr. Chang Po-ling, president of Nankai College, Doctors of Letters; Mr. S. K. Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to the Court of St. James; Dr. Wellington Koo, Minister to Washington; Dr. W. W. Yen, Minister to Copenhagen; Mr. Julean Arnold, Commercial Attache at the United States Legation in Peking and Prof. Dzung Pau-ji of St. John's University, master of arts.

ACADEMIC PROCESSION

Besides the eight honorary degrees, one degree of bachelor of divinity, seven of doctor of medicine, 21 bachelors of science and 24 bachelors of arts will be conferred.

An academic procession, in which faculty, new graduates and alumni will participate will precede the conferring of degrees. After the ceremony a reception will be held in the library.

The alumni will hold their reunion and tiffin between the hours of 10 and 2 o'clock.

At ten o'clock this morning, there will be a football game between the varsity eleven and an all-star alumni team. Alumni who wish to participate in the contest will report at the Cooper gymnasium before the game. This contest will substitute for the one scheduled with the Navy.

The new gymnasium, which is a memorial to the late Prof. F. C. Cooper of the university, will be dedicated at 2 o'clock. It is a two-story brick building and was constructed at a cost of Tls. 35,000. It is fine example of the architecture which has been called collegiate Chinese, and with the library on the campus presents a pleasing combination of Chinese and Western styles.

THE GYMNASIUM

On the first floor of the gymnasium, there is a swimming pool, 60 by 20 feet with a complete set of lockers, shower baths and heating and filtering plants. The second floor contains the office of the physical director and the gymnasium proper, a room 70 by 45 feet. The equipment consists of traveling rings, horizontal and vaulting bars, a punching bag, chest weights, etc. The floor is marked for basket ball and indoor baseball and above there is a small gallery for spectators.

Prof. Cooper was for 20 years professor of natural science in the university. He is remembered with gratitude by hundreds of his students and a tablet in his memory in St. John's pro-Cathedral expresses the appreciation of his colleagues thus:

"Honored by his fellow workers for his sincerity and unselfishness, for his efficiency as an instructor, for his loyalty to duty."

TODAY'S PROGRAM

The program for the day is as follows:

10 a.m.—Football game between Varsity Team and an All-star Alumni eleven.
10.00 a.m.—Alumni reunion.
12.30 p.m.—Alumni banquet.
2.00 p.m.—Dedication of Cooper Memorial Gymnasium.
3.00 p.m.—Academic procession.
3.30 p.m.—Conferring of degrees.
4.30 p.m.—Reception.
7.00 p.m.—Special dinner of students.
8.00 p.m.—Basketball, American School vs. St. John's.
Lantern procession and bonfire.

Home Rule Measure Will Be Presented

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—The Times understands that the Cabinet Committee has agreed on definite Home Rule proposals which will be considered by the Cabinet in the course of the week. The Times adds that it is expected that the new Irish bill will be introduced into Parliament before Christmas.

HUNGARIAN PROBLEM IS BEING CONSIDERED BY COUNCIL AT PARIS

Proposal To Exclude Rumania From Peace Conference Is Advanced

DEFINITE ANSWER WANTED

London Gets Report Of Work Of British Representative At Budapest

(French Wireless Service)

Paris, November 13. (Via Lyons and Koukaza).—The Supreme Allied Council yesterday reached an agreement regarding the settlement of various important questions.

The Council considered the different methods which it would be expedient to adopt to clear up the Hungarian situation. One of the most moderate courses of action proposed was the despatch of a note to the Rumanian Government pointing out the questions to which a definite answer is required and making it clear that failure to give a satisfactory reply will exclude Rumania from the peace conference.

SITUATION AT BUDAPEST

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 8.—Sir George Clerk's efforts as peacemaker in Hungary are proving most successful.

The Times correspondent at Budapest describes how he brought Admiral Horthy, Commander of the Hungarian National army, to a conference of representatives of the various parties with the result that the conference issued a manifesto declaring that if the National army enter Budapest this will not involve a military dictatorship.

The Times correspondent point out that this will probably, entail the resignation of the Premier Dr. Friedrich and open the way to a coalition Cabinet, while the names of two of the signatories of the manifesto indicate that the Jews have accepted Admiral Horthy's word that there will be no white terror, and that the Socialists are prepared to co-operate in forming a representative provisional Government.

It is expected that the entry of Admiral Horthy's national army into Budapest next week will be the occasion of great national celebrations.

The Rumanians begin the evacuation of Budapest on November 10.

Lenin And Trotsky Said To Be Behind Strikes Throughout Country

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, November 8.—The Government has decided on the deportation of all aliens engaged in Red activities. Agents of the Department of Justice carried out a raid on agitators all over the country yesterday, arrested many, and seized much propaganda. Two hundred individuals were arrested at the headquarters of the Russian Soviet in New York.

A monster demonstration which had been arranged by the Reds in New York yesterday was cancelled for fear of police intervention.

It is stated that a nation-wide plot against the Government has been nipped in the bud. Most of those arrested belong to the Union of Russian Workers, which has a membership of seven thousand in the United States and Canada.

PLOT WORLD-WIDE

London, November 10.—The Daily Chronicle says:

"The arrests in America have revealed a Bolshevist conspiracy for a world-wide rising. The movement apparently began with the arrival of Lennite conspirators in Switzerland, from which country they were speedily ejected. They shifted their headquarters to Stuttgart where plans were perfected for a world revolt. Their overtures to Great Britain completely failed, while the German and Italian Governments sternly suppressed the movement."

THOUSAND ARRESTED

New York, November 9.—The raids on agitators continued yesterday and today. Over a thousand persons have been arrested including the Irish agitator, Larkin, who is accused of criminal anarchy. Five tons of incendiary literature were seized. Many of those arrested carried flags with inscriptions referring to the anniversary of the Soviet revolution.

SEE LENIN'S HAND

St. Louis, November 8.—Mr. Brewster, chairman of the coal-operators scale committee declares positively that Lenin and Trotsky are furnishing funds to carry on American strikes. He adds that the United States Government knows just where the funds are coming from and is asked to trace them.

LITERATURE SEIZED

Washington, Nov. 10.—The documents seized in the Red raids are all printed in Russian. They reveal plans for the overthrow of the Government through a general strike. They advocate an armed revolt of the masses against Capital and State, and also the seizure of the means of production and of all articles of consumption.

Copenhagen, November 8.—Extraordinary precautions were taken in Berlin to prevent a Spartacist outbreak on the anniversary of the Russian revolution. Sixty socialist and communist agitators were arrested beforehand. The chief leaders are in hiding. Processions in North Berlin yesterday were broken up, practically without resistance. Thirty-six arrests were made.

QUIET IN PARIS

Paris, November 8.—The unrest in Europe in connection with the anniversary of the Russian revolution has found but meager expression in Paris. So far there has only been a miner strike of four hundred locomotive engineers who voted in favor of a general strike, which however was opposed by all the labor leaders.

LONDON FOOD MINISTRY PLANS TO LOWER COSTS

System Of Co-operating With Merchants Launched To Effect Uniform Prices

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 8.—The recent rapid rise in the cost of living is engaging the anxious attention of the Food Ministry which is developing a new method of dealing with the problem of high prices, namely voluntary co-operation of merchants with the Government as a candid friend, instead of a fixed system of control. Thus a committee representing all interests at Covent Garden has been formed, presided over by an official of the Food Ministry, to secure the uniform adoption of a fair price for fruit and vegetables. The Committee meets weekly. It is intended to extend the scheme to Billingsgate in order to stablise the price of fish, and eventually to all the markets in the country.

These are uncontrolled commodities. As regards controlled commodities, the Food Controller has decided to take off two-pence from the maximum price of New Zealand mutton as from November tenth and he hopes to take off two-pence from the price of bacon by the end of the year. It is not likely that the prices of other controlled foods will be either reduced or increased.

It is believed that the Government has decided that the bread subsidy must continue at least for the winter. While sugar, milk, and butter are scarce, the supplies of colonial mutton are abundant and there is a glut of home-grown beef, which is largely attributable to the summer drought, causing the beasts to fatten late.

GO-TO-CHURCH-SUNDAY SET FOR TOMORROW

The Rev. W. B. Norton Will Preside At Services For Young Men

Young men of Shanghai are urged to attend church tomorrow which has been designated by the Sunday Service League as "Go-to-Church Sunday" for the Young Men of Shanghai."

The Rev. William Bernard Norton, Ph. D., religious editor of the Chicago Tribune and one of the representatives of the Interchurch World Movement of North America, will preside at the Sunday Service League's meeting. His subject will be "The Fun of Being Blind."

Another feature of the meeting will be two selections by the "Shanghai Songsters." This is a new organisation, the members of which are representative of many different churches.

URGE SCHOOL CHILDREN TO SEE FLOWER SHOW

Teachers Will Escort Their Pupils To Exhibit Of Chrysanthemums

Special inducements have been offered to induce school children, in charge of their teachers, to attend the chrysanthemum show to be held by the Shanghai Horticultural Society in a matshed on the Bund, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The children are to be admitted between the hours of 2 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday and from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday. Prizes will be awarded by a committee for the best essays on the Show.

Preparations for the exhibit have been under way for some time and it is promised that the display will be well worth seeing. Record-breaking crowds are expected.

A.D.C. Will Repeat Comedy 'Ann' Tonight

Last Opportunity To See Production Offered Monday Night

Bookings at Moutrie's for tonight and Monday night's performances at the Lyceum theater of the sparking three-act comedy, "Ann," by the A.D.C. indicate the players will be greeted by capacity houses.

The signal triumph scored by the members of the cast Wednesday night when they gave their first performance is responsible for interest in the production, which ranks with the best efforts of the A.D.C. on previous occasions.

The A.D.C. in repeating "Ann" tonight offers one of the only remaining two opportunities to witness the comedy. It is rife with interesting and amusing situations and offers a delightful evening's entertainment.

NEW AMERICAN FIRM

The China Pacific Commercial Company, general importers and exporters, with offices in New York and San Francisco, will open a local branch at 1 Klukiang Road on Monday. Mr. R. D. Bunn, who was formerly connected with Messrs. Andersen, Meyer and Company, is the Shanghai manager for the new firm.

German Music Again Is Played In Paris

Two Biggest Symphonies Will Play Wagnerian Strains At Concerts

Paris, October 7.—Parisians are anxiously awaiting to see what is going to happen on Sunday afternoon when for the first time since 1914 Wagner music will be played at two of the biggest French Symphony Orchestras' concerts. The censorship being abolished and the Peace Treaty ratified there is no reason why German music should not be heard in Paris but there was before the war and throughout the war a campaign against German and especially Wagner music and the question was whether a French audience would listen to it.

A week ago when the winter symphony orchestra season began at the Concerts Lamoureno French officers applauded several French pieces and then shouted to the conductor M. Camille Chevellers, "When are we going to hear some Wagner music," whereupon the audience rose and cheered, showing that he was not the only one who wanted Wagner. M. Chevellers himself smiled and promised at his next concerts to include Wagner. Parisians claim that Sain Saens antipathy against Wagner is based on wrong information and that after all Wagner did not dislike France so much as is generally believed.

LECTURE HERE FOR BELGIAN ORPHAN AID

Miss Henrica Van der Flier To Speak At Chinese Y.M.C.A. Monday

Miss Hedrica Van der Flier, authorised representative of the King of Belgium, who is in the city for a few days while en route to her home in Holland, will give an illustrated lecture in Martyrs' Memorial Hall of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. at 8:15 Monday night, the proceeds to be given to the Belgian orphans.

Miss Van der Flier spent several months recently in the United States and Canada lecturing and raising money for Belgian children who took refuge in Holland during the war. In the United States she carried on her work under the patronage of Mrs. Wilson, wife of President Wilson.

The films to be shown Monday show the work that is being done to care for Belgian children and to train crippled soldiers to be self-supporting. On Tuesday night Miss Van der Flier will lecture in Dutch in the Astor House for the benefit of a new tuberculor hospital at The Hague and again at the French Club Thursday night when one-half the proceeds will be added to a fund for wounded French and the other half to a fund for Belgian orphans.

French Air Mail To England Started

Postal Service With Morocco To Be Inaugurated Soon, It Is Announced

(American Press Wireless)

Paris, Nov. 10.—The first French aerial postal service was inaugurated today with the departure of mail for England from Bourget near Paris and from Hounslow near London for Bourget. Commercial service by air has been in operation for some time making trips in two hours and fifteen minutes. Airplane postal service with Morocco is expected to be inaugurated soon.

OCEAN PHONE CABLES HELD IMPRACTICABLE

Communication By Wireless Will Come First, Head Of American Co. Says

(American Press Wireless)

Paris, Nov. 8.—"We will have trans-Atlantic wireless telephony before we have a trans-Atlantic telephone cable line," said C. C. Dubois, president of the Western Electric Company of the United States, who is in France inspecting the French factory of his company which manufactures much of the apparatus for the telephone systems of France.

"One can telephone 3,000 miles between New York and San Francisco because of land wires, you can have all necessary loading coils, repeaters and other apparatus and stations every few miles. But with the Atlantic telephone cable you would have to either dispense with that or incorporate these necessary accessories in the cable. There is such a weak current used in telephony as compared with telegraphy that I have heard it estimated that a trans-Atlantic telephone cable would have to be a huge affair bigger around than a man's body without counting the outside covering. Loading coils and repeaters would have to be laid with the cable.

"Another thing is that there is not enough demand for a trans-Atlantic telephone to support it. There is not as much telephone business between Chicago and San Francisco as was expected. With the present perfections of the telegraph cable lines and the improvements that are being made, the people would not pay the tremendous high telephone rates that would be necessitated to cross the Atlantic.

"It is expected that telephoning between France and England will be improved soon. The wires are now open to the public but it is very difficult to hold a conversation. European countries like England, France, Italy and Belgium have kept the telephones as a government monopoly and owing to the tremendous debts incurred during the war they are unable to make the improvements which they would have made if this war had not occurred. France for instance began to overhaul its telephone system and to make expenditures in millions for new equipment but this work must be held up because there are more pressing needs for money and the same is true of Italy and Belgium."

Mr. Dubois has just arrived in Paris from London and will go shortly to Rome. He is accompanied by his wife and daughter. W. P. Sibley, vice-president and general counselor for the Western Electric Co., G. L. Pingree, vice-president and general manager of foreign business and F. H. Wilkins, European business manager. The company has factories for making all kinds of telephone apparatus in London, Paris, Antwerp and Milan.

French Government To Open Restaurants

Unfair Competition Charged On Ground State Can Use Army Supplies

(American Press Wireless)

Paris, Nov. 10.—Two national restaurants where meals without wine will be served in heated wooden barracks in two cities in France will be opened within a month, according to official announcement from the Government. The barracks will be built by the authorities.

Protests have been made against the organisation by restaurant owners on the grounds of unfair competition stating that the State has access to army stocks and is relieved from many taxes.

Genoa, November 7.—In consequence of the decision of the Seaworkers' Federation to remain on shore in order to vote in the Italian elections on November 16th, many liners are held up, the crews being engaged in attending election meetings.

COURT ORDER DEFIED BY AMERICAN LABOR

Federation Declares Strike Justified And Pledges Full Support

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Nov. 10.—The Executive Council of the Federation of Labor has issued a statement with reference to the Federal Court's injunction which ordered the strike order to be annulled and also rendered permanent the temporary injunction refraining the leaders from directing the strike. The Council declares that the strike is justified and promises it the entire support of organised Labor.

Indianapolis, November 9.—The United States court has ordered the coal strike order to be cancelled but the miners have been given till November 11, to issue the cancellation of their strike order.

Washington, November 9.—The order prohibiting the coaling of foreign ships has been modified so as to enable foreign ships to take sufficient coal to carry them to the next bunkering station.

Washington November 8.—Following on the strenuous attempts of Mr. Samuel Gompers and others to have the Government withdraw the injunctions against the coal miners, the Attorney-General has announced that the Government's policy is unchanged and that it will proceed with its plans until the miners' strike order has been rescinded.

SOUTH AFRICA GIVEN PLANE BY BIRMINGHAM

Commissioner Outlines Plan For Air Route From Capetown To England

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 8.—The Birmingham Chamber of Commerce today presented South Africa with an aeroplane. The Acting High Commissioner for South Africa, returning thanks, after remarking that the gift embodied the spirit of goodwill of the people of England to the people of South Africa, referred to the present steps to map out a trahscontinental route from England to Capetown. He declared that an All-Red route in Africa was now for the first time possible, for the British Empire now included the whole of Eastern Africa, and this made the transcontinental air route most important to the Empire as a whole.

Major General Sir Frederick Sykes, Chief of the Air Staff, said that General Smuts had not exaggerated when two and a half years ago he predicted that the aeroplane would prove one of the most potent instruments of peace and open up new vistas of progress for the human race.

"I believe," proceeded General Sykes, that we are standing at the threshold of a new era, and its spirit cannot be better symbolised than by the advance of aviation. Aviation is the antithesis of Chauvinism. Much of the mutual antagonism between different peoples is due to lack of easy communication and consequent misunderstanding. Cables and wireless have partially broken down the walls between nations. Aviation will do more, for it will afford swift opportunities of intercourse between living personalities. When the civilised world is intersected by a system of air routes the nations will learn that it is as absurd to declare war on one another as for Birmingham to declare war on Crewe."

Mr. L. C. M. Amery, M. P., in the course of a speech, commended the idea of the great cities of Great Britain taking an interest in the affairs of the Dominions and urged that the development of aviation was vital to the defense of the Empire.

Armistice Observance In France Unofficial

(American Press Wireless)

Paris, Nov. 8.—No official government celebration of the signing of the Armistice has been announced for Tuesday and the newspapers assert that Premier Clemenceau has decided against the proposal for elections.

Many unofficial ceremonies are planned but principal attention will be given that of the "Association for the Protection of War Widows and Orphans" in Invalides Chapel, where Marshal Foch will make his entry at the exact hour of the Armistice while a chorus of victory is being sung. Later a mass will be celebrated.

The League to Combat Infant Mortality will hold an auction of five small flags bearing the signatures of Premier Clemenceau, President Wilson, Lloyd George and Sonnino. Efforts at Versailles to have school holidays for celebrations have so far failed.

QUEST SOCIETY MEETING

The first meeting of the Quest Society for the 1919-1920 season is to take place at 5:30 p.m., Monday, in the Royal Asiatic Society's Lecture Hall, Museum Road, when Dr. Herbert Shatley will deliver an address on Race Prejudice, Is Internationalism Possible?" Mr. A. J. Hughes will preside

PAY BY CHECK

Paying by check is a simple, easy method of keeping track of every expenditure made from day to day.

The cancelled checks as returned to you each month by this bank are RECEIPTS, the stubs in your checkbook an accurate ACCOUNT of every dollar spent.

Even months from now you can go back to your checkbook and know at a glance to whom and for what you've paid out money.

If you pay cash there's always a chance of losing the money—in which case it's a dead loss. If you lose a check it's worthless to the finder—or to make doubly sure you can easily order payment on it stopped.

Adopt the pay-by-check system in meeting personal and household bills. Saves time, trouble, worry and money for you.

nch President Is Speaker At Banquet In His Honor In London

ondon, November 10.—At the quet in his honor at Bucking- Palace this evening replying His Majesty's toast President neare reviewed events since the ntente cordiale" which led up to tish and French co-operation on battle-fields of Europe in 1914. paid a handsome tribute to the in which before its freedom threatened the whole British pire rose from one end of the id to another with a spon- iety, a spirit of self-denial a sentiment of solidarity ch, he said, equally honor- the motherland, the Domin- and the Colonies. Every- ere, he declared, the Em- performed prodigies in or- ising, resistance and preparing l success, heroically fighting shedding its blood upon the lds of Belgium and France side side with the armies which e defending their native soil.

M. Poincare said he was never d of admiring the splendid itary bearing, endurance and very of the British. Continuing, President paid unmeasured ise to the great work of His jesty's fleet and reminded His jesty that he had had an oppor- ity when last in Paris of as- taining what a frank and strong ndship France entertained for the peoples of the British pire.

No longer, he said, could they without each other. He hoped at Great Britain would never ve to redeem her solemn promise military assistance in the event a fresh attack on France's rtheastern frontiers and that the ague of Nations would receive authority and power necessary the accomplishment of its cific mission. He was of opinion at even within the League the ternal collaboration between eat Britain and France would tain its value and usefulness. eir union could do much for the anquility of their future and for e happiness of humanity.

In conclusion M. Poincare said at both nations were especially terested in seeing that Germany ithfully fulfilled the Treaty over e execution of which they must gether watch for long future ars. They would have to remove om the new Europe the evil mptations of adventure. The sk was not unworthy of England d France or their Allies.

"Let us have the will to accom- lish it," he said. "Let us set rselves to make war henceforth mpossible."

London, November 10.—Presi- nt and Madame Poincare and Stephen Pichon arrived at Vic- ria on a State visit this after- on. They were welcomed by the ng and Queen with whom they ove to Buckingham Palace amid ense crowds. Great enthus- sm prevailed.

Station Officer Upton Has Narrow Escape At Kobe Maru Fire

Is Struck By Swinging Hook As Damaged Cargo Is Lifted From Hold

Station Officer H. Upton had a narrow escape from severe injury and considerable property damage was done yesterday when the Hongkew Division and a section of the Central Division of the Shanghai Fire Brigade checked a fire that threatened the destruction of the N.Y.K. steamer Kobe Maru at the South Manchuria Railway Company's Whangpoo Wharf.

The fire started about 10 o'clock in the number two lower hold of the ship in cargo including rice, jute and mustard seed. At 10:25 a.m. a call was received by the Fire Brigade and the Hongkew Division responded. Upon arriving at the wharf the firemen found that the crew had two lines of hose at work from the ship's pumps. The division laid on a line of hose from the wharf hydrant and got down to the shelter deck.

Two men got down lower with smoke helmets but the heat was so severe that they were unable to remain there.

Spray and revolving nozzles were lowered as far as possible and broke down the flames considerably. But the fire was a stubborn one and some distance from the main hatch. All men working below had to wear smoke helmets.

In the meantime a District call had been turned in and a section of Central was sent to the scene. The Customs fire boat, under the command of the Assistant Harbor Master, and the Brigade fire boat also laid lines to the ship and the work was aided by Inspector Mellows, of the River Police.

By noon, after hard and excellent work by the fire fighters, the flames were under control and practically extinguished.

As the damaged cargo was being removed from the hold a guy line to the boom slipped in some manner and the hook, swinging uncontrolled, across the wharf struck Station Officer H. Upton in the side, knocking him down and bruising him severely. The heavy hook narrowly missed striking him in the head which would have undoubtedly have resulted in a severe injury or, possibly, his death.

Origin of the fire was not determined.

NEWTONIAN PRINCIPLES MAY BE OVERTURNED

Scientist's Announcement At London Seems To Require New Philosophy Of Universe

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 7.—An announcement was made before the Royal Society yesterday which is described by the press as overthrowing the certainty of ages and requiring a new philosophy of the universe and which has aroused the most intense interest in scientific circles in view of its all important bearing on the fundamental physical problem.

Sir. F. W. Byson, Astronomer Royal, expressed the conviction that the results of recent experiments were definitely conclusive that the light from the stars as it passed the sun was deflected owing to the presence of the sun, the deflection closely, according to the theoretical degree predicted by Professor Einstein, namely the deflection being twice the amount laid down by Newton.

The discussion which followed the Astronomer Royal's announcement was most intricate, no speaker succeeding in giving a clear nonmathematical statement. The result of the experiments were generally accepted but their theorefical bearings provoked much debate. Sp cial interest was attached to the presence of Sir Oliver Lodge who in February asserted that deflection if observed would follow the law of Newton. The meeting was most disappointed on Sir Oliver Lodge leaving early without contributing to the discussion.

As far as can be described in everday prose, the position is stated to be that the Newtonian principles assume that space is invariable, but certain physical facts suggest that space may acquire a twist or warp, as for instance under the influence of gravitation, this dislocation applying to instruments of measurement as well as to things measured. The Einstein doctrine is that the qualities of space hitherto believed to be absolute are reactive to their circumstances.

The newspapers declare that the new theory, if true, will change the basis of astronomy rendering observations relative instead of accurate and may even change Euclid's definition of a straight line.

Commons Discussing Age Pension Proiect

Universal Allowances To Cost Forty-One Millions Yearly, It Is Estimated

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 8.—The report of the Age Pensions Committee was presented to the House of Commons yesterday. Eleven out of eighteen members of the Committee recommend a pension of ten shillings a week and the abolition of the means limit, which would be tantamount to pensioning everybody. It is estimated that universal pensions would cost forty-one millions sterling.

Disloyalty Charges Aimed At Anfuites

the Premier on the one hand and the Anfu club and its satellites on the other has been going on for the past ten days without reaching any definite decision; and the Premier, tired of the trickery and subterfuges practiced by the Anfuites, has enlisted the support of Li Shun and Tsao Kun with a view to hitting the Anfu club hard. The first move in the game was the telegram from Tuchuns Li Shun and Tsao Kun and their friends to Parliament stating that the obstructionist policy of the Anfu majority in that body was not only hurting China but also damaging the reputations of the men that were supporting it. This message, coupled with an endorsement of Chin Yun-peng's nominees for the Cabinet, has frightened the Chihli Kiangsi and Kiangsu parliamentarians and the withdrawal of the Government's subsidy has done the rest.

Members of Parliament who are anxious to retain their seats and whose affiliation with the Anfu club was mainly due to the $300 monthly salary that they received from that body are rapidly deserting the Club. It is believed here that within a few days enough Members of Parliament will have undergone a political change of heart to enable General Chin to get his Cabinet ratified by both Houses without difficulty and that thus the prestige of the Anfu Club, which has been the bete noire of good government here for the last year will be a thing of the past.

CLUB WITHOUT FUNDS

With the cutting off of the Government subsidy the Anfu Club will, furthermore, be without funds for the extensive propaganda organisation that it has built up in Peking and in the provinces. The largest news agency and over half of the newspapers in the capital are Anfu propaganda organs, and every city of any size in the Northern and Central provinces has at least one Anfu daily newspaper. Practically all of these sheets and agencies are operating at a loss and will have to be closed up unless funds for their continuation can be found from other sources. No organisation but the Government is, however, big enough to finance a political group like the Anfu Club; and as the Government has developed enough strength within itself to stop all Anfu subsidies it looks as though the Anfu news propaganda system would break down. With this system will go the real power of the club itself, and although the name may linger on in politics the club is likely to be but a shadow of its former self.

The credit for the defeat and downfall of the Anfu Party is given here to General Chin Yun-peng, who is admitted generally to have shown the first strong government policy since the early days of Tuan Chi-jui. Behind Chin is Tuan Chi-jui, who is not at present active in politics, but whose advice and weight of influence are sought after by all parties; and other active supporters of General Chin are Tuchuns Li Shun and Tsao Kun. With co-operation Chin, Tsao and Li who are supported by the President and not opposed by Tuan Chi-jui, the outlook for a united Cabinet and a definite policy regarding peace with the South is now thought to be bright.

this country merely with a view to enchance its own position and financial gain. It typifies and includes everything that is ugly in Chinese officialdom, and its attitude has been that of forwarding the interests of its members at the expense of peace and national existence.

"It is impossible to believe that any self-respecting Chinese who has the good of the country at heart would associate himself with this organisation. Every name of its members is blacklisted by the educated public. Every condition of a real peace pre-supposes the elimination first of that gang of which Wang is the spokesman."

Guests At Luncheon Get Seattle Gifts

Prominent American business men and members of the U.S. Consulate-General were guests yesterday noon at a reception and luncheon served aboard the steamer Seattle Spirit, berthed at the China Merchant's Eastern wharf.

The vessel, which is one of the Admiral Line, is here on her maiden voyage. Built in Seattle, the people of that city were given the opportunity of naming the new ship. Not only that but the Chamber of Commerce of that city sent souvenir boxes with the vessel, one of which was given to every guest at yesterday's reception. They contain an assortment of packages representative of the manufactures of that city. An inspection of the entire vessel was led by Captain Spaulding.

KOREAN SYMPATHISER OFF FOR JAPAN TOUR

Revolutionist Pastor Leaves Shanghai Under Safety Pledge Of Nipponese

In spite of warnings, the Rev. W. H. Lyuh, pastor of the Shanghai congregation of Korean Christians and active Korean revolutionary workers, together with two of his countrymen, left yesterday for Japan on the Kasuga Maru, accompanied by Mr. K. Fujita, secretary of the local Japanese Y.M.C.A. They go under solemn guarantees from Japanese high in official life that they will be returned to Shanghai safely and with full liberty after the elapse of about four weeks.

With Mr. Lyuh go Mr. K. W. Choi, a Korean who was educated in Japan and who speaks Japanese fluently, and Mr. C. W. Cynn, a Bhuddist priest and delegate to the Korean Provisional Parliament. In Moji, they expect to meet Mr. Chang Duck-koo, another revolutionist who has been held prisoner since early last spring. He is now awaiting them, according to assurances from the Japanese officials, and will be permitted to make the trip through Japan with the party.

AT JAPAN'S INVITATION

The journey is made at the invitation of the Japanese. Mr. Lyuh desires to present to them the argument that independence for Korea means safety for Japan. What the Japanese Government wants with Mr. Lyuh has not yet been disclosed. Ostensibly it is their purpose to hear the grievances of the Korean people, but according to members of the independence movement, the trip is more probably a serious effort to open negotiations with the revolutionists. Mr. Lyuh has no official credentials on which to make overtures, but the fears for his personal safety entertained a week ago by Mr. Ahn and Mr. Li, two members of the cabinet, appear to have been quieted considerably before the departure. Their opposition, though not withdrawn, was at the last confined chiefly to the contention that if Japan wanted to negotiate, the Japanese should come to Shanghai and not the Koreans to Japan.

Mr. Fujita, himself a Japanese and the man through whom the arrangement for Mr. Lyuh's visit were negotiated, never wavered in his insistence that the guarantees for safety would not be broken and that Japanese high in the Cabinet should be given a chance to hear the Korean view-point presented. He and Mr. Lyuh stood together and waved their friends good-bye as the vessel sailed for Moji yesterday morning.

Prince Of Wales Speaker At Ottawa

Thanks Dominion Government For Hospitality Extended To Him On Visit

(Reuter's Service)

Ottawa, November 8.—The Prince of Wales in the course of a speech at the Canadian Club said that he had been given the most marvelous and enthusiastic welcome everywhere in Canada and had received the kindest hospitality and also hundreds of kind gifts and letters, including not a few from ladies, some of which were so charming that he would like to have been able to meet the writers. He thanked the Canadian Government for the admirable arrangements made for his tour. He added that he was not conceited enough to regard all the great kindness and hospitality shown him as personal to himself. He knew that they came from the whole nation regardless of race and party and were given him as the King's son and heir. He valued them especially because they expressed the same common sentiment which had made Britishers stand together in the War and would keep them solid and united for ever.

Manchuria And Mongolia vs. Shantung

BY T. R. JERNIGAN

ON May 25, 1915, Japan and China entered into certain treaty relations which materially enhanced the interest of Japan in Manchuria and Mongolia. The enhancement in Manchuria does not appear to have arrested the same attention as it has in Shantung, but in the former province it will be more significant if carefully examined. One of the treaties provides for the leasing of land in Manchuria by Japanese "necessary for erecting suitable buildings for trade and manufacture or for prosecuting agriculture enterprises." Another provision is that Japanese subjects are to be "free to reside and travel in South Manchuria and to engage in business and manufacture of any kind whatsoever;" and there is another provision for the opening of "certain suitable places in Eastern Inner Mongolia as commercial ports."

It will be seen, from the provisions quoted, that China has conceded, in the solemn form of certain treaties, rights and privileges to Japan in two of her great outer provinces as serious if not more so, than the rights and privileges claimed by Japan in Shantung, and yet nothing is said about it, while an outcry is made and heard with reference to Shantung which is receiving the consideration of the American Senate. China has not only conceded to Japan the practical possession of Manchuria and Mongolia, but confirmed the possession by extending the lease to Port Arthur to 1997, and postponing the date for restoring the South Manchurian Railway to 2002, and changing the date of the expiration of the Antung-Mukden Railway contract to 2007.

But Japan was not satisfied with the extension of her railway interests in the two provinces named, and China made another treaty concession by conceding to Japan the permission to select prospect, and work coal and iron mines in six districts of Manchuria and three of Kirin.

And there are other serious aspects of this treaty-making between China and Japan. In the treaties, Japan has been thoughtful of the future as well as the present, and the following indicate the purpose and plan of that country. It is agreed that "if foreign capital is required for building necessary railways in Manchuria and Eastern Inner Mongolia, China may negotiate for a loan with Japanese capitalists first," and that "hereafter, if foreign advisers, instructors on political, financial, military, or police matters are to be employed in South Manchuria, Japanese may be employed first."

It is thus Japan has protected herself by placing China under a treaty obligation to give Japan possession in part, and preferential rights, in an area of territory about as large as China proper, and capable of supporting a population four times the number of the present population of Japan. And in view of the advantages enjoyed by Japan in Manchuria and Mongolia it may not be surprising that she looks with disfavor on the proposal of a banking consortium.

Now if a map of the two provinces referred to be examined carefully, in connection with what Japan has decided to be the "necessary railways in Manchuria and Eastern Inner Mongolia," the plan for the following five lines may be traced: (1) Changchun to Chaoyang; (2) Chaoyang to Jehol; (3) Kaiyuan to Hailung; (4) Sonpin Kai to Chaoyang; and (5) Kirin to Hailung. The decision of Japan has been accepted by China, and money borrowed from the Yokohama Specie Bank for the construction of a section of the road from Changchun to Chaoyang.

China clearly approves the aim of Japan to do all the business in Manchuria and Mongolia without a competitor as is evidenced by the wholesale concessions made in the treaties. And it is as plain that Japan has the impression that business men of no other nationality are to enter Manchuria or Mongolia for enterprises of any kind without her consent. But it would not be just to conclude that the people of China approve the monopolising treaty concessions in favor of Japan. They would not disapprove Japan's enjoyment of equal opportunities to trade with and develop their country, and they ought not to be held wholly responsible for the mercenary acts of a few officials who have constituted themselves the Government of China.

But however Japan may view this subject, the trend of events will soon be expressed in the form of a notice, that no one nation shall engross the business and development of China, and the notice will be given by Western nations capable of having it respected. There is America, the wealthiest and most resourceful nation of the world, which has been brought nearer to Asia by modern inventions, and whose business men are full of enterprise and looking over the border lines of their country for new fields of industry. The present trade relations between America and Asia are increasing in value and it is desirable and business-like that the value of the relations should go on increasing. The share of America in Asiatic commerce for the last fiscal year reached the impressive and unprecedented total of $1,434,823,549, or $465,552,044 more than the commerce of America with the whole of South America for the same period. In Asia the figures show that America bought $226,979,453 more than she sold; but to this general rule of excess of imports, American trade with Japan amounted to $630,455,310, or 44 percent of the entire commerce of America with Asia, and an excess of American exports of $32,469,228. It is curious to note here that the foreign trade with a certain part of Manchuria is classified in the official statistics as "Japanese China," evidencing that Japan is expanding and appropriating and giving her name to the land of China which she has possessed.

In all countries with which America has trade relations they are satisfactory, except with the South American States, and this because the trade of those states has never been properly cultivated. In both the British and Dutch East Indies the expansion of American trade has been notably rapid in the last two years; to the former the exports for 1917 were valued at $37,108,127, while for 1919 they reached the amount of $64,272,887. The imports, which in 1917 were $217,610,056 increased by 1919 to $287,376,018. Notwithstanding the rise in the price of commodities the volume of trade has nevertheless increased.

The figures presented are proof of what the foreign commerce of China will be worth when the country recovers from the rule of selfish politicians and collects herself by the aid and guidance of men who have patriotism and honor. For several months the Peace Conference, which was supposed to convene in Shanghai, has apparently demonstrated the necessity of a strong patriotic character whose voice "confusion will hear and wild uproar obey." There seems to be no good reason why the Conference should not have acted effectively in the interest of peace. If Peking and Canton will agree to proclaim anew the provisional constitution and administer the affairs of China, in accordance therewith, until the framing of a permanent constitution, peace would follow; and there need not be any delay in framing the permanent constitution. It is understood that the old Parliament contends that one of its special functions was to frame the permanent constitution, and, if so, why do not the members of the old Parliament get together and frame it? Why are they scattered over China talking about their right to frame a permanent constitution for China and yet, having the opportunity, but failing in their duty towards a much-needed act that may restore peace to their country, or locate the blame and cause of the domestic disturbances now destroying its vitality?

Let the members be consistent, frame the permanent constitution and submit it to their countrymen. It will then be realised what form of government China is to have, and the sooner the better.

Socialism In Operation: A Prison

Edward Bellamy Pictured A State In Which Every Citizen Bade Farewell To Freedom And Surrendered To The Elected Boss—Required Population Of Angels

By Stephen Leacock

(Professor Of Political Economy At McGill University, Montreal)

The reading public is as wayward and as fickle as a bee among the flowers. It will not long pause anywhere, and it easily leaves each blossom for a better. Incidentally the bee, while impelled by an instinct that makes it search for sugar, sucks in therewith its solid sustenance.

I am not quite certain that the bee does exactly do this; but it is just the kind of thing that the bee is likely to do. And in any case it is precisely the thing which the reading public does. It will not read unless it is tempted by the sugary sweetness of the romantic interest. It must have its hero and its heroine and its course of love that never will run smooth. For information the reader cares nothing. If he absorbs it, it must be by accident, and unawares. He passes over the heavy tomes filled with valuable fact, and settles like the random bee upon the bright flowers of contemporary romance.

Hence if the reader is to be ensnared into absorbing something useful, it must be hidden somehow among the flowers. A treatise on religion must be disguised as a love story in which a young clergyman, sworn into holy orders, falls in love with an actress. The facts of history are imparted by a love story centering around the adventures of a hitherto unknown son of Louis XIV. And a discussion of the relations of labor and capital takes the form of a romance in which the daughter of a multi-millionaire steps voluntarily out of her Fifth Avenue home to work in a steam laundry.

Such is the recognised method by which the great unthinking public is taught to think! Slavery was not fully known till Mrs. Stowe wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and the slow tyranny of the law's delay was taught to the world forever in the pages of "Bleak House."

SOCIALISM MADE PALATABLE

So has it been with socialism. No single influence ever brought its ideas and its propaganda so forcibly and clearly before public mind as Edward Bellamy's brilliant novel, "Looking Backward," published some thirty years ago. The task was arduous. Social and economic theory is heavy to the verge of being indigestible. There is no such thing as a gay book on political economy for reading in a hammock. Yet Mr. Bellamy succeeded. His book is, in cold reality, nothing but a series of conversations explaining how a socialist commonwealth is supposed to work. Yet he contrives to bring into it a hero and a heroine and somehow the warm beating of their hearts and the stolen glances in their eyes breathe into the dry dust of economic argument the breathe of life. Nor was ever a better presentation made of the essential program of socialism.

It is worth while then, as was said in the preceding chapter, to consider Mr. Bellamy's commonwealth as the most typical and the most carefully constructed of all the ready-made socialisms that has been put forward.

The mere machinery of the story can be lightly passed over. It is intended simply as the sugar that lures the random bee. The hero, living in Boston in 1887, is supposed to fall asleep in a deep, underground chamber which he has made for himself as a remedy against a harassing insomnia. Unknown to the sleeper the house above his retreat is burned down. He remains in a trance for 113 years and awakes to find himself in the Boston of the year 2000 A. D. Kind hands remove him from his sepulchre. He is revived. He finds himself under the care of a certain learned and genial Dr. Leete, whose house stands on the very site where once the sleeper lived.

The beautiful daughter of Dr. Leete looks upon the newcomer from the lost world with eyes in which, to the mind of the sagacious reader, love is seen at once to dawn. In reality she is the great-granddaughter of the fiancee whom the sleeper was to have married in his former life; thus and there suspicion of the transmigration of souls illuminates their intercourse. Beyond that there is no story, and at the end of the book the sleeper wakes in reality, still in the vaulted room, to find that the world of the year 2000 A. D. was but a dream.

AN INDUSTRIAL PARADISE

And what was this world? The sleeper's first vision of it was given him by Dr. Leete, who took him to the housetop and let him see the Boston of the future. Wide avenues replace the crowded, noisy streets. There are no shops, but only here and there among the trees great marble buildings, the emporiums from which the goods are delivered to the purple public.

How the goods are delivered, indeed! Dr. Leete explains it all with intervals of grateful cigar smoking and of music and promenades with the beautiful Edith, and meals in wonderful communistic restaurants with romantic waiters, who feel themselves, mirabile dictu, quite independent.

And this is how the commonwealth operates. Everybody works, or at least works until the age of 40, so that it may be truly said in these halcyon days everybody works but father. But the work of life does not begin till education ends at the age of 21. After that all the young men and women pass for three years into the general "industrial army" much as the young men used to pass into the ranks of conscription. Afterward each person may select any trade that he likes. But the hours are made longer or shorter, according to whether too many or too few young people apply to come in. A gardener works for more hours than a scavenger. Yet all occupations are equally honorable, and the wages of all the people are equal, or rather, there are no wages at all, as the workers merely receive cards which entitle them to goods of such and such a quantity at any of the emporiums. The cards are punched out as the goods are used.

The goods are all valued according to the amount of time used in their making, and the citizen, each citizen, draws out the same total amount. But he may take it out in instalments just as he likes, drawing many things one month and few the next. He may even get goods in advance if he has any special needs. He may, within a certain time limit save up his cards, but it must be remembered that the one thing which no card can buy and which no citizen can own is the 'means of production.' That belongs collectively to all. Land, mines, machinery, factories and the whole mechanism of transport; these things are public property managed by the State. Its workers in their use of them are all directed by public authority as to what they shall make and when they shall make it, and how much shall be made. On these terms all share alike; the cripple receives as much as the giant; the worker of exceptional dexterity and energy the same as his slower and less gifted fellow.

TYRANNY OF THE ELECTED

All the management, the control—and let this be noted, for there is no escape from it either by Mr. Bellamy or by anybody else—is exercised by boards of officials elected by the people. All the complex organisation by which production goes on, by which the workers are supervised and shifted from trade to trade, by which their requests for a change of work or an extension of credit are heard and judged; all of this is done by the elected "bosses." One lays stress on this, not because it is Mr. Bellamy's plan, but because it is, and it has to be, anybody's plan that constructs a Socialist commonwealth.

Mr. Bellamy has many ingenious arrangements to meet the needs of people who want to be singers or actors or writers—in other words, who do not want to work. They may sing or act as much as they like provided that enough other people will hand over enough of their food cards to keep them going. But if no one wants to hear them sing or see them act they may starve, just as they do now.

Here the author harks back unconsciously to his nineteenth century individualism; he need not have done so, other socialist writers would have it that one of the everlasting boards would "sit on" every aspiring actor or author before he was allowed to begin. But we may take it either way. It is not the major point. There is no need to discuss the question or how to deal with the artist socialism. If the rest of it were all right, no one need worry about the artist. Perhaps he would do better without being remunerated at all. It is doubtful whether the huge commercial premium that greets success today does good or harm. But let it pass. It is immaterial to the present matter.

One comes back to the essential question of the structure of the commonwealths. Can such a thing, or anything conceived in its likeness, possibly work? The answer is, and must be, absolutely and emphatically no.

Let any one conversant with modern democracy as it is, not as its founders dreamed of it, picture to himself the operation of a system whereby anything and everything is controlled by elected officials, from whom there is no escape, outside of whom is no livelihood and to whom all men must bow! Democracy, let us grant, is the best system of government yet operative in this world of sin: and beside automatic kingship it shines with a white light: it is obviously the portal of the future. But we know it now too well to idealise its merits.

A century and a half ago, when the world was painfully struggling out of the tyranny of autocratic kingship, when English liberalism was in its cradle, when Thomas Jefferson was composing the immortal phrases of the Declaration of Independence, and unknown patriots dreamed of freedom in France; at such an epoch it was but natural that the principle of popular election should be idealised as the sovereign remedy for the political evils of mankind. It was natural and salutary that it should be so. The force of such idealisation helped to carry forward the human race to a new milestone on the path of progress.

But when it is proposed to intrust to the methods of elective control not a part but the whole of the fortunes of humanity, to commit to it not merely the form of government and the necessary maintenance of law, order, and public safety, but the whole operation of the production and distribution of the world's goods, the case is altered. The time is ripe then for retrospect over the experience of the nineteenth century and for a realisation of what has proved in its experience the peculiar defects of elective democracy.

Mr. Bellamy pictures his elected managers—as every socialist has to do—as a sagacious and paternal group free from the interest of self and the play of the baser passions and animated only by the thought of the public good. Gravely they deliberate, wisely and justly they decide. Their gray heads—for Bellamy prefers them old—are bowed in quiet confabulation over the nice adjustment of the national production, over the petition of this or that citizen. The public care sits heavily on their breasts. Their own peculiar fortune they have lightly passed by. They do not favor their relations nor their friends. They do not count their hours of toil. They do not enumerate their gain. They work, in short, as work the angels.

Now let us ask in the name of sanity where such officials are to be found. Here and there, perhaps, one sees in the world of today in the stern virtue of an honorable public service some approximation to such a civic ideal. But how much, too, has been seen of the rule of "cliques" and "interests" and "bosses," of the election of genial incompetents popular as spendthrifts, of crooked partisans warm to their friends and bitter to their enemies, of administration by a party and for a party, and of the insidious poison of commercial greed defiling the wells of public honesty!

GOVERNMENT AND PROGRESS

The unending conflict between business and politics, between the private gain and the public good, has been for two generations the despair of modern democracy. It turns this way and that in its vain effort to escape corruption. It puts its faith now in representative legislature, and now in appointed boards and commissions; it appeals to the vote of the whole people or it places an almost autocratic power and a supreme responsibility in the hands of a single man. And nowhere yet has the escape been found. The melancholy lesson is being learned that the path of human progress is arduous and its forward movement slow, and that no more form of government can aid unless it is inspired by a higher public spirit of the individual citizen than we have yet managed to achieve.

And of the world today, be it remembered, elective democratic control covers only a part of the field. Under socialism it covers it all. Today in our haphazard world a man is his own master; often indeed the mastership is but a pitiful thing, little more than being master of his own failure and starvation; often indeed the dead weight of circumstance, the accident of birth, the want of education, may so press him down that his freedom is only a mockery. Let us grant all that. But under socialism freedom is gone. There is nothing but the rule of the elected boss. The worker is commanded to his task and obey he must. If he will not there is, there can only be, the prison and the scourge, or to be cast out in the wilderness to starve.

Consider what it would mean to be under a Socialist State. Here, for example, is a worker who is, or says he is, too ill to work. He begs that he may be set free. The grave official, as Mr. Bellamy sees him, looks at the worker's tongue. "My poor fellow," says he, "you are indeed ill. Go and rest yourself under a shady tree while the others are busy with the harvest." So speaks the ideal official dealing with the ideal citizen in the dream life among the angels. But suppose that the worker, being not an angel but a human being, is but a mere hulking, lazy brute who prefers to sham sick rather than endure the tedium of toil. Or suppose that the grave official is not an angel but a man of hateful heart or one with a personal spite to vent upon his victim. What then? How could one face a regime in which the everlasting taskmaster held control? There is nothing like it among us at the present day except within the melancholy precincts of the penitentiary. There and there only the socialist system is in operation.

Who can deny that under such a system the man with the glib tongue and the persuasive manner, the babbling talker and the scheming organiser, would procure all the places of power and profit while patient merit went to the wall?

WHAT ABOUT WAGES?

Or turn from the gray officials to the purple citizens of the soap bubble commonwealth of socialism. All work, we are told, and all receive their remuneration. We must not think of it as money wages, but, all said and done, an allotted share of goods marked out upon a card comes pretty much to the same thing. The wages that the citizens receive must either be equal or not equal. That, at least, is plain logic. Either everybody gets exactly the same wages irrespective of capability and diligence or else the wages or salaries or whatever one calls them are graded so that one receives much and the other little.

Now either of these alternatives spells disaster. If the wages are graded according to capacity, then the grading is done by the everlasting elective officials. They can, and they will, vote themselves and their friends or adherents into the good jobs and the high places. The advancement of a bright and capable young man will depend, not upon what he does, but upon what the elected bosses are pleased to do with him; not upon the strength of his own hands but upon the strength of the "pull" that he has with the bosses who run the part of the industry that he is in. Unequal wages under socialism would mean a fierce and corrupt scramble for power, office and emolument beside which the utmost aberrations of Tammany Hall would seem as innocuous as a Sunday school picnic.

"But," objects Mr. Bellamy or any other socialist, "you forget. Please remember that under socialism the scramble for wealth is limited; no man can own capital, but only consumption goods. The most that any man may acquire is merely the articles that he wants to consume, not the engines and machinery of production itself. Hence even avarice dwindles and dies when its wanted food of 'capitalism' is withdrawn."

But surely this point of view is the very converse of the teachings of common sense. "Consumption goods" are the very things that we do want. All else is but a means to them. One admits, as perhaps an exception, the queer acquisitiveness of the miser millionaire, playing the game for its own sake. Undoubtedly he exists. Undoubtedly his existence is a product of the system, a pathological product, a kind of elephantiasis of individualism. But, speaking broadly, consumption goods, present or future, are the end in sight of the industrial struggle. Give me the houses and the gardens, the yachts, the motor cars, and the champagne, and I care not who owns the gravel crusher and the steam plow. And if under a Socialist commonwealth a man can vote to himself, or gain by the votes of his adherents, a vast income of consumption goods and leave to his unhappy fellow a narrow minimum of subsistence, then the resulting evil of inequality is worse, far worse than it could ever be today.

AN INCENTIVE TO LOAF

Or try, if one will, the other horn of the dilemma. That, too, one will find as ill a resting place as an upright thistle. Let the wages—as with Mr. Bellamy—all be equal. The managers then cannot vote themselves large emoluments if they try. But what about the purple citizens? Will they work, or will they lie round in their purple garments and loaf? Work? Why should they work? Their pay is there, "fresh and fresh." Why should they turn up on time for their task? Why should they not dawdle, sitting upon the fence in endless colloquy while the harvest rots upon the stalk? If among them is one who cares to work with a fever of industry that even socialism cannot calm, let him do it. We, his fellows, will take our time. Our pay is there as certain and as sound as his. Not for us the eager industry and the fond plans for the future, for the home and competence, that spurred on the eager youth of old days; not for us the earnest planning of the husband and wife thoughtful and anxious for the future of their little ones. Not for us the honest penny saved for a rainy day. Here in the dream land of socialism there are no rainy days. It is the sunshine all the time in this lotus land of the loafer.

And for the future, let the "State" provide; for the children's welfare, let the "State" take thought; while we live it shall feed us, when we fall ill it shall tend us, and when we die it shall bury us. Meantime let us eat, drink, and be merry, and work as little as we may. Let us sit among the flowers. It is too hot to labor. Let us warm ourselves beside the public stove. It is too cold to work.

But what? Such conduct, you say, will not be allowed in the commonwealth. Idleness and slovenly careless work will be forbidden? Ah, then, you must mean that beside the worker will be the overseer with the whip; the time-clock will mark his entry upon his toil; the machine will register his effort, and if he will not work there is lurking for him in the background the shadowed door of the prison. Exactly and logically so. Socialism, in other words, is slavery.

IDEALISING THE PEOPLE

But here Mr. Bellamy and his school interpose at once an objection. Under the socialist commonwealth, they say, the people will want to work; they will have acquired a new civic spirit; they will work eagerly and cheerfully for the sake of the public good and from their love of the system under which they live. The loafer will be extinct. The sponge and the parasite will have perished. Even crime itself, so Mr. Bellamy tells us, will diminish to the vanishing point, till there is nothing of it except here and there a sort of pathological survival, an atavism, or a "throwing back" to the forgotten sins of the grandfathers. Here and there, but only here and there, some poor fellow afflicted with this disease may break into my socialistic house and steal my pictures and my wine. Poor chap! Deal with him very gently. He is not wicked. He is ill.

This last argument, in a word, begs the whole question. With perfect citizens any government is good. In a population of angels a socialist commonwealth would work to perfection. But until we have the angels we must keep the commonwealth waiting.

Nor is it necessary here to discuss the hundred and one modifications of the socialistic plan. Each and all fail for one and the same reason. The Municipal Socialist, despairing of the huge collectivist State, dreams of his little town as an organic unit in which all share alike; the syndicalist in his fancy sees his trade united into a co-operative body in which all are equal; the gradualist, in whose mind lingers the leaven of doubt, frames for himself a hazy vision of a prolonged preparation for the future, of socialism achieved little by little, the citizens being trained as it goes on till they are to reach somehow and somewhere in cloud land the Nirvana of the elimination of self; like indeed, they are, to the horse in the ancient fable that was being trained to live without food but died, alas, just as the experiment was succeeding.

There is no way out. Socialism is but a dream, a bubble floating in the air. In the light of its opalescent colors we may see many visions of what we might be if we were better than we are, we may learn much that is useful as to what we can be even as we are; but if we mistake the floating bubbles for the marble palaces of the City of Desire, it will lead us forward in our pursuit till we fall over the edge of the abyss beyond which is chaos.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper

The Religious Use Of Humor

Laughter in sermons is a perilous expedient for enforcing truth, but so great a preacher as Phillips Brooks sometimes used it and came off successful. The Churchman (New York) recently devoted two editorials to the subject, and while it administered a caution as to the use of humor within the Church, it also pointed to a duty that the Church might observe in regulating the professional purveyors of humor outside it. "Let us, who love the Church and the nation," it says, "see that our periodicals of humor perform their task so that they will build up the best, and never by any means injure the tendencies which are good." The case is cited of a leader of American public opinion excluding a humorous magazine from his home because "it was perpetually making sport of marriage and condoning thereby all forms of divorce and remarriage." The Churchman suggests that the man might have taken another course:

"He knew the subtle influence of humor thus directed to break down the functions held sacred by his family for all remembered generations. As a man of wide influence it is a question whether he ought not to have gone further, and to have done his utmost either to reform or to abolish the magazine, had that been possible. Perhaps he did act. In any case the man who recognises a precious element in professional humor, circulated broadcast through the country, should warn people, as far as he can, just what they are doing when they encourage even by silence the supposed respectability of such a sheet.

"Our readers may remember a picture printed several years ago showing the vestryman of a large church collecting the missionary offering of the congregation, while a poor woman stood by the door neglected. The collectors of the alms of the people were gross, hard-faced men, and the plates which they carried were overflowing with bills. The man, who knew little of the Church and who had no interest beyond his street, was probably pleased to laugh over what he believed the folly of foreign missions. Every one who knew better should have written to the editor of the magazine to say that the men who are enthusiastic about the welfare of people far away never yet looked as those vestrymen looked in the picture. And some rectors could have told him that from direct knowledge they knew that the people who gave most lavishly for the distant part of the Church did most for the forlorn and the suffering poor in the immediate neighborhood. There are, of course, great benefactors who give only to local needs, but they rarely criticise others' methods. It is a general rule that the critic of foreign missions gives little or nothing to anybody. The poor woman standing at the church door has her best chance, not with the man or woman who refused to give on a missionary Sunday, but with the person who on that Sunday gave most.

"The open attack upon the ambitions and aspirations of the Church, and of religion generally, can readily be met if the cause is just. But the raillery which humor may invent, if it is allowed to go on unrebuked, is as difficult to check as a runaway horse, which is far ahead of all who long to stop it.

"There are ridiculous aspects in life, in the Church and outside it, at which people ought to laugh till the faults are laughed out of existence. There are other aspects which are simply gay and amusing. Over them, too, the laughter may be kindled with profit. Humor may bind together the rational and normal people, making them more sane, keeping them from stupid narrowness, enlarging their loving kindness.

"The way Punch kept itself above spite during a cruel war in which provocation was intense shows to what heights humor can rise. Even the Kaiser's face was not twisted. Lessons were taught, people bearing enormous burdens were cheered, there was no leniency with the evil force which England sought to vanquish, but there was everywhere an amazing amount of Christianity. The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of Oxford, and other brave leaders of the Church bent on saving the souls of Englishmen from bitterness and hate, had no more capable and effective ally than a humorous paper which most people read only for amusement."

Diseases Of The Emotions

Need For More Study Of Widespread Breakdown In Balance Of Personality

By Dr. Stewart Paton

Repeated warnings have been given by persons familiar with the deplorable conditions prevailing in many European countries as a result of the war, of the possibility of some pestilence gathering such headway in the devastated areas that there is danger of its sweeping over the entire world. Gradually public opinion is being aroused to the gravity of the situation and to the need for taking still greater precautions to prevent such a calamity. Although the danger has by no means been averted, it is reassuring to feel that intelligent efforts are being made to limit the spread of germ-carried diseases.

Unfortunately there is still a larger, more insidious, and in their effects upon our social life more destructive group of disorders to which comparatively little attention is being given. These diseases, disorders of the personality, are more of a menace to our civilisation than were the plans of the German General Staff. The world is in a turmoil. Suspiciousness, jealousy, hatred, belief in the infallibility of some special system of proposed reform, and an inability to appreciate that "no man is altogether right, and no man is altogether wrong" are indications that the rational control of human behavior is jeopardised by the present state of emotional unrest. The German Army was defeated, but do not let us forget that the same kind of emotional and mental reactions that planned and then attempted to justify the invasion of Belgium and the sinking of the Lusitania is responsible for the chaos in Russia and schemes for new republics, citizenship in which shall be restricted to psycho-neurotic individuals.

If we follow the advice of the historian Lecky to pay more attention to the study of human predispositions, and less to the study of human arguments, we shall be surprised to find the number of persons in every community whose mental processes suggest those we once thought to be characteristic only of the members of the General Staff of the German Army. Ludendorfian and Von Tirpitzian habits of thought and action are to be found among the defenders of almost every creed. Personalities like things are not always what at first sight they seem to be. It is a mistake to assume that what and not how a man thinks determines whether he is sane or insane. It is not as is commonly supposed the German militarist but the German sentimentalist who is responsible for the high explosives in the German character. Egotism, a sincere belief in superiority of Kultur, and an ardent desire to convert mankind were the sources of the motives that led to the organisation of the German General Staff and were responsible for the declaration of war.

Extraordinary transformations in personality take place daily before our eyes and we pay little attention to the significance of these changes. Minds are unmade and remade in our presence and not even our curiosity is stimulated sufficiently to find out what has actually taken place. The irritable, crotchety husband may become an enthusiastic pacifist and defender of the rights of people not members of the immediate family. Editors of journals, once extremely conservative in their expressions of opinion, are changed in the twinkling of an eye and become, if not supporters, at least sympathetic expounders of the imaginary benefits of a Soviet regime. Those who have had some experience in the art of studying the human personality are not surprised by the occurrence of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde changes in a personality. The effort to compensate for unpreparedness and unwillingness to face critical situations in life often drive a person into a debauch of wishful thinking. Many persons substitute inductive for deductive methods of reasoning as a compensatory form of reaction for having failed either to face squarely or to undertake in an earnest spirit the solution of their own immediate personal problems.

The success of the effort to remedy as well as to prevent many of the diseases of the emotions now threatening the foundations of society will depend upon the intelligence of the effort we make to understand the human personality. It is imperative that adequate provision should be made at once for studying the pronounced disorders of the personality now described as mental and nervous diseases. Better facilities should be provided for carrying on investigation in this special field and steps should be taken to increase the number of physicians who are trained in the special art of studying the personality.

The universities at the present moment have a unique opportunity to encourage the study of human predispositions. Practically no instruction is given to students in regard to methods of self-analysis nor practice in the difficult task of cultivating the emotional and mental reactions essential for the cultured mind. Students should be given instruction in mental hygiene and in the methods of studying the personality. They should be told how obsessions are formed, what factors contribute to giving an abnormal degree of fixity to ideas. Professors as well as students should recognise that the successful accomplishment of daily tasks is essential for the maintenance of the balance between emotion and reason. No matter how beautiful his ideals may be, the impractical idealist is often a menace to the community. In Russia many super-idealists have formed the habit of replying to their opponents by murdering them.

One of the chief symptoms of the present unrest is an abnormal craving for pitiless publicity in settling other people's affairs, associated with a decided disinclination to consider the question of first putting our own house in order. In order to become and remain sane it is essential that we act upon the advice given more than 2,000 years ago, "know thyself."

Today By Arthur Brisbane

Permanent improvements are alone important. Learn how Mr. Phipps is digging his cellar opposite the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York City.

Once Mr. Phipps was very poor. He sold gunpowder as clerk in a store, and when his long day was ended he walked eight miles to keep books for a blacksmith not good at figures.

He, the blacksmith and Andrew Carnegie went into the steel business together. They were Scotch, careful, and made money, tens of millions.

Along came J. Pierpont Morgan, not Scotch, not careful. He bought them out for hundreds of millions, added a thousand millions of watered stock to the financial salad and they were all very rich.

Now Mr. Phipps, having torn down the building in which Vernon Castle used to give his dancing lessons, is taking out the rock from the bottom of his deep cellar. You will see hope for the solution of our labor problem in the way Mr. Phipps digs solid rock, with one single workingman in the hole, thirty or forty feet below the side-walk.

Dynamite has loosed the rock. It lies in huge pieces, weighing tons or more. A hundred men down there could not lift one of them. In days when pyramids were built thousands would have sweated and died under the lash, with barely enough to eat, moving that rock.

Today Mr. Phipps's rock mover gets $6 or $7 a day, and the hardest work he does is to move his right hand gently.

There is a steel crane on the sidewalk; the engine lowers and pulls up a steel cable with an iron hook at the end.

At the solitary workman's feet lies a great solid iron ball that must weigh half a ton, half as big as a barrel. The workman beckons, the steel hook drops beside the iron ball and is attached by a fishhook arrangement to which is fastened a long rope.

The ball is hauled up into the air forty feet above one of the huge stone blocks. A slight pull on the rope, the ball falls with terrific force and shatters the rock into small pieces. This operation is repeated until all the big rocks are broken conveniently small.

If you put fifty men with sledge hammers pounding for an hour they could not shatter those blocks of granite as they are shattered by the huge iron ball falling once. The workman's moving finger, the engineer above at the throttle and a few pounds of coal have done all the work.

Next workmen will put the small pieces of rock into wooden carriers, directed by the waving finger of the rock breaker. These boxes are lifted, no man making any physical effort, and dropped by the engine on big automobiles and carried away.

Thus, Mr. Phipps, who keeps young by working, digs his cellar out of the solid rock of Manhattan, using the power of gravitation locked up in an iron ball to break his rock, the power of steam, expanding, to haul it up and the power of gasoline, exploding, to haul it away.

In this cellar-digging process you see what will be ultimately the solution of the labor and production problems. With steel, gasoline, brains and half a dozen workmen at the most, Mr. Phipps will dig his rock cellar more rapidly than a thousand men could have dug it in the old days.

And as he is saving labor in his stone cellar, enabling one man to do the work of a hundred, so labor is being saved in the fields by harvesting machinery, and in the mills where a machine, in one day, can do the work of a thousand needle-women.

Men, machinery and brains combined will produce plenty for all, including reasonable leisure for all; good pay for those that work, fair profit for those that invest, generous pay for those that invent and improve.

The trouble has been, in the past, unwillingness to give workers a fair share of the increased production.

That man in the stone cellar, moving his finger, intelligently directing the steam engine above, does the work that a hundred men used to do. It is not too much to give him the pay that ten men used to get. Even at that price you are ahead the labor of ninety men.

When the Medici Princess, descendant of the great Italian merchant, left Florence for Marseilles on her way to marry Henry the Fourth of France hundreds of men were fastened to the oars. The short Mediterranean passage lasted seventeen days.

She could make the trip now in a few hours, with a sharp-nosed boat, a few gallons of gasoline and one engineer.

The inventor of the gasoline engine is entitled to his millions, if he wants what is unnessary. The engineer is entitled to fair wages under improved production. So is the man directing the rock-breaking for Mr. Phipps, and every other honest worker.

Employers must pay well for good work; workers give a day of full production for a good day's pay. The duty of the general public is to see to it that work is done without friction, fighting, strikes, waste, stupid niggardliness at the top; brutal, ignorant talk of revolution at the bottom.

The only revolution this country wants is the revolution in method that has changed a hundred underpaid men, swinging heavy sledge hammers, into one single highly paid workman, moving his finger and directing labor as it should be directed, with a minimum of effort and a maximum of brains.

A human race sufficiently intelligent to build a flying machine ought to be intelligent enough to feed and clothe itself and pay its workers well without hatred or bitterness.

Banking Service with AMERICA —direct and personal

EXPORTERS or importers now engaged in, or thinking of, trade with America would do well to consider not only the special nature of our facilities, but also the personal interest we take in every one of our customers' transactions.

First of all, we offer direct banking service—without intermediary dealings, or unnecessary delays.

Equally important is our personal service. Every transaction is followed through, both here and in America, by our own representatives with a personal interest, the value of which is evident in the service rendered.

May we talk with you about America?

Szechwan Crepe de Chine

Direct from the Source of Supply, to any Address in the World.

Travelling through Szechwan Province more than 600 years ago Marco Polo, the celebrated Venetian Explorer, observed this beautiful Crepe de Chine. He took it to Kublai Kahn, the greatest Emperor the world has ever known and Kublai Kahn presented it to the most favoured women of his court, adding charm and beauty to the already most beautiful women in the world. Send us your cheque or Chinese Post Office money order for $20. In return we will mail you one roll of Szechwan Crepe de Chine, postage free. Width 26 inches, length 30 feet. Original Shade.

Banking Service with AMERICA —direct and personal

EXPORTERS or importers now engaged in, or thinking of, trade with America would do well to consider not only the special nature of our facilities, but also the personal interest we take in every one of our customers' transactions.

First of all, we offer direct banking service—without intermediary dealings, or unnecessary delays.

Equally important is our personal service. Every transaction is followed through, both here and in America, by our own representatives with a personal interest, the value of which is evident in the service rendered.

May we talk with you about America?

Weekly Cotton Market Reports

BY A. B. ROSENFELD & SON

China Cotton:—The cotton market during the early part of the week has been practically featureless. Fluctuations were within narrow limits, influenced from day to day by the "Silver" Market and as a consequence Spinners are practically out of the market awaiting some new features to give it a decided turn one way or another. What little sentiment there is leans towards the "Bear" side, on account of the almost impossibility for exports, coupled with the fact that general business on cotton, locally, has not improved as it should, and the conclusions are that prices must decline.

As anticipated, natural conditions have asserted themselves, and at the close of the week prices dropped about half a teal, with a steady to weak undertone. It would be unwise, however, to disregard the effect of the months after Chinese New Year, on the minds of the holders of "actual" cotton and on the actions of speculators. While the immediate outlook may appear more or less involved, we continue to believe in lower prices for the near months.

J. SPUNT AND CO.

China Cotton.—Following upon the issue of our last report the Canton market developed a weakish tendency and prices ruled about 5 mace lower than that prevailing during the previous week, at which rates a fair quantity of the staple has been supplied to some of the local foreign mills.

Strange as it may seem, the high figures now ruling in Mid-Americans, Indians and Sampin, have had but very little bearing on the trend of the local market in that whatever strengthening influence such would have had, was counteracted by the ever stringent monetary conditions, coupled with the extremely high rates of exchange now being experienced. Tone of the market Weak.
